

Programme

Supporting employee's mental health during COVID and beyond Thursday 13 May 2021

Employee mental health has become more important than ever for landlords over the past year.

The UK's leading psychiatrist has warned COVID poses the greatest long-term threat to mental health since the second world war.

The pandemic has meant that many people's traditional ways of coping with mental health problems have not been readily available and teams are having to deal with increasingly complex scenarios in their communities, with sharp rises in anti-social behaviour and domestic abuse.

10:00 Opening remarks from Chair
Charlie Norman, Chief Executive of Mosscares St Vincent's

10:15 Orbit have a dedicated app for staff, 30 mental health champions and also gave staff practical tips to support their mental health during pandemic
Louise Roberts, People Development Director, Orbit

10:30 Session title TBC
Steve Allcock, Director of Data & Digital Transformation at Johnnie Johnson

10:45 SYHA's supportive culture when it comes to employee mental health and their mental health first aiders
Tony Stacey, Chief Executive of South Yorkshire Housing Association

11:00 Session offering practical tips to support employee mental health and wellbeing
Emma Mamo, Head of Workplace Wellbeing at MIND

11:15 Panel Discussion

12:00 Closing remarks from chair
Charlie Norman, Chief Executive of Mosscares St Vincent's